

Abstract

Factors Influencing the Effectiveness of Village Fund Allocation (ADD) Management in Tanjung Raja Village, Tanjung Raja sub-district, North Lampung District

By:

Heri Susanto

Abstract

This research aims to determine the influence of the effectiveness of village fund allocation management in Tanjung Raja Village, Tanjung Raja District, such as planning, implementation, responsibility and accountability for village fund allocation. This type of research is quantitative with primary data sources and non-probability sampling methods. Data was collected using questionnaires and interviews with village government elements involved in ADD management. Data analysis uses effectiveness techniques and effectiveness criteria ratios. The research results show that the effectiveness of village fund allocation management is in the effective category.

Keywords: Village fund allocation, effectiveness, management